I like to describe myself as an enthusiastic seeker of knowledge, driven by an insatiable curiosity to learn, experience, and grow. Life, for me, is an endless journey of exploration and practical understanding. I find solace in the pages of books, drawing inspiration from the vast realms of literature. Writing, particularly crafting narratives for movies, allows me to translate my imagination into tangible stories. I believe in the philosophy that infinity is the opposite of perfection a line that is repeatedly mentioned by my mentor . For me , giving my best has always been the goal and my aim is to innovate and create something which benefits society as a whole . From a young age, my passion for debate, public policy, law, and writing has been the driving force behind my academic pursuits and I plan to pursue something that involves these particular

2) Why did you choose to do an IBDP?

Curiosity and innovation are at the heart of my educational philosophy. The IBDP's focus on critical thinking and inquiry-based learning resonates with my natural inclination to question, explore, and seek deeper understanding. The program encourages intellectual curiosity and provides a platform for fostering innovation, allowing me to develop a mindset that values continuous learning and adaptability in an ever-evolving world. One of the key elements that drew me to the IBDP is the Creativity, Activity, Service (CAS) component. I have always been drawn to social service, leadership, organizational and creative thinking skills . Practical learning is another cornerstone of my decision to pursue the IBDP.

4) Mention a person or an incident that has impacted your thoughts, actions and personality. Explain how you have been influenced.

My mentor and English teacher is a person who has changed the trajectory of my life . Earlier, writing was just a small avenue to let out my thoughts but Mr. Rao helped me build on it and use it as a weapon to express myself and impact people . He has taught me that the philosophy of life , success and failure lies in doing own's duty , hard work with the sole purpose of enjoying it and becoming passionate about it . He is the person who lifted me up and encouraged me to publish my own anthology of poems. Whether it is economics , law or writing he has given my greatest gift of life which is the thirst for learning and becoming curious .

5) The fears and challenges that you need to overcome.

Over the years, I have realized that my inclination to take up too much responsibility has emerged as a hurdle. Juggling numerous responsibilities can lead to burnout and hinder overall effectiveness. I often find myself go haywire while I try to manage multiple tasks. Learning to delegate tasks, set realistic priorities, and cultivate a healthy work-life balance becomes paramount in overcoming this challenge. Another one of my weaknesses includes striving for perfection, which often results in a reluctance to submit work until it reaches an unrealistically high standard. I have started to recognize the importance of finding a balance between excellence and timeliness. I have understood that overcoming the fear of imperfection and acknowledging that growth stems from learning through mistakes is crucial in breaking free from the shackles of perfectionism.
